The rain seems to fall a little softer now
And the sun seems to shine a little brighter
The smile in my eyes is not a disguise
As I think about thanking the Lord
When I realize the nights are a little bit shorter

It's my same old world through different eyes

The fall seems to be a little softer now
The clouds seem to move a little faster
The chains in my heart are breaking apart
I prepare myself for a brand new start
This anchors a little bit heavier now

It's my same old world through different eyes

I'd like to know why the world is so against this baby
