You could have 50 grands in your wallet
But you wouldn't spare a dime.
Before you would cut off that mullet
The third world will be fine
50 cent is playing on the pioneer in your car
You don't realize how cheap you really are
Money talks, bullshit walks
No matter what, no matter where you are
Yelling at me with your snake leather suit
I guess you never will, you never can change
You could spend 50 grey years wandering
To never never land
Lost hopelessly you're wondering why
You've got the weaker hand
50 skins you've she'd but still it hasn't got you far
You didn't realize that you are best at who you are
Money talks, bullshit walks
No matter what, no matter where you are
Yelling at me with your snake leather suit
I guess you never will, you never can change
Let me tell you something
It's not about where to rock, It's how to rock
You gotta take this from me, you understand?
You are hooked on what, on what you've got Whether I like it or not
But if there is a price to pay I'll work all day
Until I know that I won't have to deal with people like
You anymore
Power talks, bullshit walks
No matter what, no matter where you are
Screaming at me with your pigheaded face
I guess you never will you never can understand
