No sight, No blame
No conscience and there's no shame
There's always something to cure
Lost and adrift with no way to shore...

But it's so simple and you should know
That it's so simple, this drowning is slow
It's so simple, and I know
That it's so simple I can't wait to go...

And I don't have a cure
Been waiting for something else to come along
I don't have a cure
The change is today, it's what I've been waiting for...

You're so right...
All the time, oh you could never answer a single lie
While you've become a waste of time
I'm taking back myself from the grind...

If it's so simple, then you should know
If it's so simple, just let me out...

And I don't have a cure
Been waiting for something else to come along
I don't have a cure
It's in your hands and it pushes me down...

But I can't walk this alone
And it changes what I know
A sense of facing I've a long way to go
Can't you fake it, just can't take it
I'm torn...
Will you watch over me (save me...)

And I don't have a cure
Been waiting for something else to come along
I don't have a cure
It's in your hands and it pushes me down...

I don't have a cure...

I don't have a cure...
The change is today...
It's what I've been waiting for...
