If all is created by one
Then, in effect, we all are one
Shant we know
Why live in fear, why divide
Lest another overcomes this world
In a word lies a chance to make peace be all known
This word should mean everything to all of the earth
All of the earth
Pledging allegiance with hands over hearts
We still confide in the loar
Chanting with pride, while, in fact
The written words are rarely sworn; of that, I'm sure So many look away from those with backs against the wall
What's happening to liberty and justice for all
Justice for all...
Indivisible; we defy the term
Universal principles we deny after birth
As we separate certain kinds of people from all of the others
Specify races, one against another
Swear by a book; proclaiming holy regions
Denounce religions that embrace a different vision
Creeds influence malicious 'elan
I'll rescue me with what I feel from what I've heard
I understand what it means to be the salt of the earth...
salt of the earth
Indivisible; I cry the word
I feel invisible, like no one wants the tables to turn Still teaching children to separate people; discriminate colors
Specify races, one against the other Spit on the meek from the might, the dark from the light
And cause havoc placing judgement on everything in sight
Alas, we still don't get along; we just don't get along Ye of little faith can't get along; we just won't get along
If all is created by one; then, in effect, we all are one
