Weep not for me in the morning
For morning brings warm, sweet rebirth
Look not for me in the daytime
When young spirits play on the earth
But think of me kindly at evening
When sunsets' colors bring us back to the start
Make no decisions at night time
Night time lies to you heart

Think of me in the fall
When the world is turning colors
Think of me in the fall
When we would reach for one another
Think of me

Don't fear the coldness of winter
I'll wrap you up like a long, woolen coat
Catch just a faint smell of roses
And laugh when there aren't any flowers about
And in the young embrace of springtime
Let your fancies turn to other things
Please don't be lost in the summer
And the forgetfulness it brings

Think of me in the fall
When the night air is for sleeping
Think of me in the fall

When the memories are for keeping
Think of me
Think of me

I will guide your steps away
From trouble that's unseen
I will light your way on stormy seas
And the breeze that shakes each leaf to shining
Leaves you dancing 'neath the trees
That will be me
That will be me

So...
Don't hold so tightly to sorrow

Sorrow gives nothing in return
Walk in the fields by the roadside
When the leaves are starting to turn
And if a song bird serenades you
For just one moment won't you
Smile that smile for me?

Think of me in the fall
When the world is turning colors
Think of me in the fall
When we would reach for one another
Think of me in the fall
When the night air is for sleeping
Think of me in the fall
When the memories are for keeping
Think of me
