(A futuristic fantasy)
Every evenin at six o'clock
The whole town will walk around the square
No rival factions, no big attractions
The people will be the reason to be there
In the outlyin districts there'll be music everywhere
No one will feel out of it unless they really want to There'll be no commercially-inspired loneliness to haunt you
Entrance to places of entertainment will be free
So you can wander in and out and dig new sounds
All this will come to be because Entertainers will be on salary
But they gotta clean up their own coffee grounds!
