

Daybreaker "City Lights"

Visit "City Lights" on MotoLyrics.com

Well I've got hopes, but that's all I've got and I'm starting to believe that that ain't worth a lot. Every lesson's been telling me the same; it's a hard luck life, jumping puddles in the rain. But I've got six strings that will keep me sane and one day, girl you're gonna know my name. I feel alive tonight, think I might take you for a ride. We'll glow in the city lights and forget all the troubles in our lives. I'm tired of feeling so stuck at the bottom, my heart's racing like I'm climbing up a mountainside. I'm trying to get a little something for me, because I can't do this old routine. Times are hard for dreamers struggling to get a shot, and lately my luck isn't running too deep but I'll give it what I've got. Lately I've been running a little low on sleep, but I promised one day we would run away to the places we dreamed when we were young and had something no one could take away.

Visit Daybreaker page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.