Because sometimes a sudden incident changes your mind

And then you regret every single word you said

You will wish to make things undone in the end

You feel sorry

But that won't help

No that won't help

Feel that anger in your mind

Have you been right or wrong?

From the bottom of your heart you must confess

Leave words unspoken

Sometimes it's better to keep things rolling

Hide em somewhere

In a place where no one hears em

Catch em, hide em, swallow them, get rid of em

Get used to that, get used to that

Before you spit words out and you regret every single one you lose

Always remember the meaning cannot be turned

You will try to make things undone but this chance does not exist

You must confess, you better

Leave words unspoken

Sometimes it's better to keep things rolling

Hide em somewhere

In a place where no one hears em

Leave words unspoken

If you will ever change your mind

You would regret that you didn't...

Leave words unspoken

Keep words in the shadow of your mind

Bind them to your heart and take em to the grave

Leave words unspoken

Sometimes it's better to keep things rolling

Hide em somewhere
In a place where no one hears em

Trust me... I know because I regret
