I'm a traitor to myself I am lost in someone else I'm afraid I might need help, becoming more of me and less like somebody else And I know that I've made mistakes, many more than I can take
But I swear I'll show the world, that I'm not about to break

I'm a prisoner I have lost my faith in falling down Take me away in chains, take me away
But I know that I'll stand ground because there's more like me around There's no one else like you, no matter what you do

So I will stick to my guns, I won't become just anyone To say my name, or walk in line, no longer will I waste my time
I know I'll break through, I know that I'll see you're questioning my morality Places I've conquered, and places I've been, I'll become something you haven't seen

Words represent my fists held high I bring them up
And I pull down the sky.
