The arctic surrounded my cold wooden room
I don't think I've ever felt so warm These waters brought back to me What I reluctantly believed And I watched as the four corners gave way To the ice and the life and the death

And the warmth
And they were all joined together

In that one instant I could feel you crushing me but I didn't want to remember what it felt like to be alive and still feel so col

in crayon and ink
what I understood the least were these words not spoken out of fear of the law
or self sacrifice

and I never thought that confirmation would come in to play
and these words were never going to be on the tip of your tongue and I was locked in a place that I'd never seen before without windows but with curtains hanging on the walls and I was forced to believe all I had

I had to self-deprive and I was proved wrong when you came back in a room filled with nothing this table looked away from me a kick to your foot and a twist of your head and I saw that you were afraid but if you think that I was just being cold you don't know how scared I was

in crayon and ink
what I understood the least
were these words not spoken

and these words were never going to be on the tip of your...
