Making eyes at two hundred feet
Your awkward silhouette Fire crawls up inside your skin and tickles down your back
Love sick air inside our lungs exhales at quickened pace
I could love you like a high school girl with age across my face
Dizzy heat I can feel the beat of the pulse inside your chest

This is the spark that we'll remember
This is the spark that we'll remember
The one that brings us all together
This is the spark that we'll remember
The one that brings us all together
This is the spark that we'll remember
This is the spark that we'll remember
Take care the little lights that pull each other through

Pale pink light through our closed lids
My salty twisted mouth
Sun kissed hands that wander free and feel me inside out Bodies doing what they're made to do under foreign sky
We're endless shades of the same blue
Filled with perfect light Dizzy heat I can hear you speak of the endless summer hue

This is the spark that we'll remember
This is the spark that we'll remember
The one that brings us all together
This is the spark that we'll remember
The one that brings us all together
This is the spark that we'll remember
This is the spark that we'll remember
Take care the little lights that pull each other through
