Breathing in our tough skin, breathing out is such a waste
I hold it in, suffocating, my attempt at preservation
This city's full of scattered life, we barely meet each other's eyes
We're romantic but all we hear is the noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise

I've been gone for far too long the city kinda got me down
The busy buzz of station hum goes round and round and round
I see some color around the borders but how we ever gonna make it through
All the noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise

Moments of peace are bitter-sweet cause you know you have to leave
Every dream has to end so that we can see the difference
Pulsing bass and swinging hips clutter up all our senses
We want quiet but all we hear is the noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise

I've been gone for far too long the city kinda got me down
The busy buzz of station hum goes round and round and round
I see some color around the borders but how we ever gonna make it through
I see some color around the borders but how we ever gonna make it through
All the noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise
The noise, the noise, the noise
