The line to your heart is just like a telephone
Everything is all tied up
Tied up in miserable knots
Like the world that we live in.
Not so long ago you used to listen to His call
And now it's not the same
I think you've lost control
But still I constantly dial your number
Something has knocked your life right off the hook
Cause deep inside you know it's ringing

Your line is busy-trying to get through to you
Your line is busy-I wonder who you're talking to Your line is busy-I'm running out of things to do
I can't get through to you
