Let it go, when you run away with someone
To the corners of your mind
Be it time or place or space of love
I think you know, I think you know

Whatever magnifies you
My heart won't let it go
So whatever the barriers, whatever the forces are
I know that they don't matter but they do

And that's why, I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

If you could see what I see
When I rest my eyes on you
Be it people words or anything
I think they know, I think they know

If it's you, it's you and only you
'Cause my emotions run my life
So wherever the rainbows go, wherever the teardrops are
I bet they feel the love I get from you

And that's why, I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

It's funny you should say, I dream you all this time

'Cause all the time, I think I do It's funny you should say, you see the love, I push to your heart
I sure hope it's in your nature to love me more

And that's why I, I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more
I find it so hard for me to tell you
I want you to love me more

To love me more, to love me more
To love me more, to love me more
To love me more, to love me more
