I hear you in my head
All of the things that you said
I'm listening again and again
'Cause I never used to think of you as a friend

Now I hear it in my head
(My head that)
That strange wind that cries
It wakes me up inside
(Inside)

That strange wind that cries
It makes me feel alive
To see it in your eyes
That strange wind
(Strange wind)
That cries

Yeah, I'm still here, thumbing through the book that you left
A hundred different symbols, I always wondered what they meant
A circle, a jagged edge, a cross, holding little bits of the truth
Whatever I may be hiding, I think that I could show it to you
(To you)

Now I hear it in my head
(My head that)
That strange wind that cries
It wakes me up inside
(Inside)

That strange wind that cries
It makes me feel alive
To see it in your eyes
That strange wind
(Strange wind)
That cries

Oh, I've got so much to tell you, I've been lonely, I've been wild

And when I see it in your eyes a wilder cry than even mine
I know something's hidden inside, strange wind that cries
I hear you in my head

There it is again, that strange wind that cries
It breaks me up sometimes, that strange wind that
cries
It makes me feel alive, to see it in your eyes

That strange wind
(Strange wind)
That strange wind
(Strange wind that Cries)

I hear you in my head, All of the things that you said
I'll be keeping all your secrets 'till the end
'Cause I'm getting used to, thinking of you as a friend
