A geography of a people
Unafraid to win
Buy you up and use you up
And sell you for your skin

Some of them are restless
Some of them are tired
Some of them will praise you as they roast you on a fire

Birds can't see what people see
They're flying in the air
Evil seeds are quick to breed
They'll leave you cold and bare

Who came back to the doorstep
Of an ancient family tree?
Getting his wages in iron and sulphur
Copper, gold, and steel

Some of us are filthy
Some of us are clean
All of us are doomed and fleshy entropy machines

Birds can't see what people see
They're flying in the air
Evil seeds are quick to breed
They'll leave you cold and bare

The meanest grandmother lives the longest
The meanest grandfather lives the longest
The meanest uncle lives the longest
The meanest brother lives the longest

Birds can't see what people see
They're flying in the air
Evil seeds are quick to breed
They'll leave you cold and bare

Birds can't see what people see
They're flying in the air
Evil seeds are quick to breed
They'll leave you cold and bare
