I'm just looking to live
To learn how to live.
Slowly starting to see it's me
I will need to forgive.
Cos it seems
Like I'm stuck here between
What I know and what I cannot know now
With too many choices
Of which way to go
Insight's a no show.

I don't need a miracle, I'm much more predictable.
I just need you to show me this life.
And if you ain't too critical,
We could be something beautiful.
I just need you to show me this life.
Take me home tonight.

Just a fantasy away,
Your naked love laid next to me
My ecstasy.

If I can't decide to opt for my choice
Does it mean I'm replacing,
Erasing your beautiful voice.
So every time you would tell me a lie,
I could happily take it.
If all revelations would idly flow by,
I wouldn't even fake it.

I don't need a miracle, I'm much more predictable.
I just need you to show me this life.
And if you ain't too critical,
We could be something beautiful.
I just need you to show me this life.
Take me home tonight.

Just a fantasy away,
Your naked love laid next to me
My ecstasy.

I thought I'd see it for myself,
But this life ain't, it ain't for me alone.
And here I thought I could keep it for myself,
But you can slice the light right off my sun
With your razor blade caress of love.

I don't need a miracle, I'm much more predictable.
I just need you to show me this life.
And if you ain't too critical,
We could be something beautiful.
I just need you to show me this life.
Take me home tonight.

Just a fantasy away,
Your naked love laid next to me
My ecstasy.
