

Poets of the Fall

"Signs Of Life"

Visit "Signs Of Life" on MotoLyrics.com

She stands by the corner shop
At the edge of a rainbow
She thought the solution
Someone painted on the wall

He writes in his daily journal
Eyes blindfolded, gathering pieces
With no direction to go anymore

When what's real becomes
Just another source of hurt
And when meaning's gone
From every word

Signs of life, color your skin
Emotions within,
Show you the fast lane to your love
When love is a kiss of terminal bliss
Designed to erase all signs of life
From the smile on your face
To the lines you rephrase
It will always guide you to your love
Your love is a kiss
My undying wish
Designed to retrace the signs of life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life

She disguises herself in a New York fashion
To find her passion she lights her beacon
High on coffeshop produce

And he still picks his trains by chance
Chooses opinions to fit his circumstance
To find something he can use

When you're free to choose
But the choices leave you lost
When you feel you pay way more
Than it should cost.

Signs of life, color your skin
Emotions within,
Show you the fast lane to your love
When love is a kiss of terminal bliss
Designed to erase all signs of life
From the smile on your face
To the lines you rephrase
It will always guide you to your love
Your love is a kiss
My undying wish
Designed to retrace the signs of life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life

When you feel you've exhausted all your options
And you still find yourself with nothing to believe in Free your mind and you will see
Free your mind and you will see, see, see

Signs of life, color your skin
Emotions within,
Show you the fast lane to your love
When love is a kiss of terminal bliss
Designed to erase all signs of life
From the smile on your face
To the lines you rephrase
It will always guide you to your love
Your love is a kiss
My undying wish
Designed to retrace the signs of life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life
Signs of Life

Visit Poets of the Fall page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

