Drip by drip the water leaks
The noise it makes is how it speaks
The words it says are "Time goes on"
The life it lives is never done

A drip is like a day in life
Sometimes they come and pass you by
And no one knows from where they came Or what they're for
Or what's their names

One drip kept dry throats from parching
One drip saw the red sea parting
One drip rolled down Jesus face before he died to take my place

A drip of water isn't much
So insignificant are such but every time a drip
I see my Savior dying on a tree

One drip kept dry throats from parching
One drip saw the red sea parting
One drip rolled down Jesus face before he died to take
my place
