Archer Prewitt
"Another Day"

Here's another day
She waits and pulls herself away
In just the right moment to save her face
Watch the time go ticking down
Water falling on the ground
Catch myself and try to speak with grace

You needed just enough anger
To get you through the door
You got just enough honesty
To make you want a little more

I wish for nothing but the rain
To fall and wash away
Everything that I've done wrong
Find away to make you strong
If only for another day

When I'm all alone
Just me and my ghosts
Standing three deep
Just like centuries at their post
Will you make sure I remember
Just a little more than most
Make sure that I understand
The consequence of past

You needed just enough anger
To get you through the door
You got just enough honesty
To make you want a little more

So it goes
I wish for nothing but the rain
To fall and wash away
Everything that I've done wrong
Find away to make you strong
If only for another day

When you see me chasing dead dreams
And you know that I'm not there

That the one that sits across from you
Returns your stare
Then why did you feel quiet (not totally sure about this line)
Like you always did in a way
To get what I deserve
It's the part that doesn't die that makes it hurt

Here's another day
She waits and pulls herself away
In just the right moment to save her face
Watch the time go ticking down
The water's falling on the ground
Catch myself and try to speak with grace

So it goes
I wish for nothing but the rain
To fall and wash away
Everything that I've done wrong
Find away to make you strong
If only for another day

I wish for nothing but the rain
To fall and wash away
Everything that I've done wrong
Find away to make you strong
If only for another day
If only for another day