Once upon a time
We used to count stars on a clear night
The street lights have made it hard to see
You say there's magic in the drowned out constellations
Won't you make it magical for me?
When we're drifting through the chaos of the city
You're only looking straight ahead
I want to stop to take a picture of the skyline
You would rather burn it down instead
Can I hold the weight of your mind?
Can I have a taste of your mind?
Can I climb the hill of your mind?
Can I learn the ways of your mind?
Can I buy the weight of your mind?
Can I try a piece of your mind?
Can I see the hole of your mind?
Can I see the hold in your mind?
I try to understand that greatness is a blessing
Even though it doesn't seem to be
You watch the passion with the wonder of a stranger
Won't you make it wonderful for me?
When we're passing through equations of disaster
I subtract myself from what I see
You say there's beauty in the nature of a nightmare
Can't you make it beautiful for me?
Can I hold the weight of your mind?
Can I have a taste of your mind?
Can I climb the hill of your mind?
Can I learn the ways of your mind?
Can I buy the weight of your mind?
Can I try a piece of your mind?
Can I see the hole of your mind?
Can I see the hold in your mind?
Can I hold the weight of your mind?
Can I have a taste of your mind?
Can I climb the hill of your mind?
Can I learn the ways of your mind?
Can I buy the weight of your mind?
Can I try a piece of your mind?
Can I see the hole of your mind?

Can I see the hold in your mind?
Can I hold the weight of your mind?
Can I have a taste of your mind?
Can I see the hole of your mind?
