This human incompetence and consequence;
sub-human intolerance hitting home.
This stupid old prejudice and its consequence;
civilian rights are not right for All deserve rights, large and small

Rise and fall each breathe could be the last chances have all come and past

Why can't we just shake the urge to end everything?
Property lines slice through the Earth.
The sudden urge to control our surroundings, money and time now define their worthless
we rise and fall

Fighting for land to on and man will always find reasons for war.
Fighting wars yields bitter rewards so let's contemplate what to fight for

From the oceans we rise to the ashes we fall all for one not one for all

Where do we go when we no longer exist?
Apologies are useless, they're nothing, they're impotent.
To savour the taste of youth and sweet control Hierarchol classes split the masses pray your ranking's high Off-white, low-life, nuisance in a flawless life ground underfoot like ashes
The worlds a fucking gas chamber

Populations rise and fall.
