Who could find him the sidwinding Indian
Why do they miss him, the overpaid simpleton?
She jumped in the river of the tears that I cry
Those are left alone, they're left outside

Spooky little lizard girl, where did you run to?
I only asked your name, never meant to hurt you
She wrote me a letter on the back of the road
I was travelling away and she turned thru the circle

Of the church chimes over the hill
The church chimes over the hill

Who could find him the sidwinding Indian
Why do they miss him, the overpaid simpleton?
She jumped in the river of the tears that I cry
Those are left alone, are left outside

Spooky little lizard girl, where did you run to?
I only asked your name, never meant to hurt you
She wrote me a letter on the back of the road
I was travelling away and she turned thru the circle

Of the church chimes over the hill
The church chimes over the hill

She's been switched on inside my head
An imaginary friend sitting by my bed
Taking pictures of my soul
All the angles no-one could know

I thought an eagle was seeing thru my eyes
I thought everybody turning into spies
Reassures the only aim of my life
Please reassure me that I'm doing alright

No more calls on the telephone
She's been turned off and i'm all alone
She's been switched off inside my head
An imaginary friend sitting by my bed

Taking pictures of my soul
All the angles no-one could know
I thought an eagle was seeing thru my eyes
I thought everybody turning into spies

Reassures the only aim of my life
Please reassure me that i'm doing alright
No more calls on the telephone
She's been turned off and I'm all alone
