

Airborne Toxic Event, The "Half Of Something Else"

In the night that we met you said that you wanted something more from me and it was all that I could do

I remember your face, like a child the way that you blushed and the way that you smiled and that was all that I could do so I woke up feeling new you're so much more than I ever knew so I think of all those times spent alone it's like you're searching for something to make you feel whole like a half of something else just a fraction of yourself it's so hard, we did what we could there were no easy answers to be understood and it was all that we could do we're the only ones who knew all I think about is you the way that you laugh

the way that you smile the way that you whispers told me all her secrets the way that you told told me I was wrong

and the way that you'd sing when you sing a song and the way that you answered you knew I was wrong now I tell you I would die if it's what you'd rather see and I don't care if its clever I just want you with me

I'm only half of something else
