And I asked again
"Would it be alright for me
To acquire someone else's disenchantment?"
I could reconnect
To another time and place
Reconsider letting loose and running rampant

Take me back, teach me
Take me back, apology

I never meant to be
And I won't take much with me
Just an open mind and a second nature
Don't forget you might
Just drink the water
If it illustrates the nonesuch nomenclature

So push the button ring the bell
Behold your tongue it's served you well
Enough to bring you here
Won't you please

Take me back, teach me
Take me back, apology

If we fall to touch
There will be no backlogged time
You can make believe it like a bunch of postcards
And the stones will read
In a modest fashion
Don't expect too much, you might be disappointed

Take me back, teach me
Take me back, apology

Take me back, teach me
Take me back, apology
