It's the night before the night before Christmas old friends together the same time every year she's leaving him, but he doesn't know it to everyone else it's perfectly clear

Their holiday party has secrets in the air something that he doesn't share she's found another she's movin' on the day after New Years she'll be gone

The guests are uneasy they don't know how to act should they tell him or keep it hushed? take a drink and a snack talking behind his back soon everyone's getting lushed

It's the night before the night before Christmas
old friends together the same time every year
she's leaving him but he doesn't know it
to everyone else it's perfectly clear

She said promise you won't spend a lot on my present just give me something small a little reminder is more than enough it's the thought that counts after all

The gift that she's giving he can't foresee a gift that begins with a _D_ When he gets the papers Things will look grim Why ruin Christmas for him?

It's the night before the night before Christmas
One year later together as friends they moved apart but the party's still going a holiday spirit that never will end
