I wish that you could see the you that I see. Not some bullshit glamour fantasy. Put down those magazines and see... see a real beauty. I wish that you could see the glory that I see. Shining like the winter sun. I wish that you could see... see the true glory. Wish there was something I could do to make you see. Wish there was something I could say... but you won't hear me. I guess there's some things that I can't explain. Some things that I could never change. I read your thoughts in your eyes when you look at me. I see the real you when you smile. I see the real beauty. I see the real beauty.
