All wheels on the car from a 1990 truck
The one brain in your head
It's in there for good luck

When two go in and one and one comes out
Two go in and one comes out
It's 1925 and I walk the line

Put the hammer
Put the hammer down
Put the hammer

Fourteen out of twenty-four days
The sixty-third, I won't get paid (hey)
I'm fifty feet away from the crap
A minute to break, I'm taking a dive

Judge on a scale from one to ten
Not in the front and not on the end
And when I get up in the mix
I come all undone

Put the hammer
Put the hammer down
Put the hammer
Put the hammer down

Put the hammer
Put the hammer down
Put the hammer
Put the hammer down

One second, one second of humanity
Where it could be, but it ain't even close
And if you ask me, I don't wanna be Everyday, everyday, everyday be

But I need a sick one
Nothing to spend, nothing equal
Every question is less than ample
But you never know, yeah, you never,

You never
You never

(Yeah! Hey!)

When two go in and one and one comes out
Two go in and one comes out
It's 1925 and I walk the line

Put the hammer
Put the hammer down
Put the hammer
Put the hammer down (hey)

(Yeah!)

(Put the hammer down)
