You always knew it'd fail
You had your rules
You broke them all at once
You had your rules
You broke them all at once
Even on your knees
You always cared too much

Step out of the dream
You know the way, come see what's real
What is lost is not to be found
It never stayed true to your cause - To your cause
You wander off
It never did you any good
There is no point to build a bridge that they will never cross
Realise

This is enough
Never hoping for the best
That's a mistake
You have nothing to fear

I didn't land where I thought I would
I should have learned, this has happened before Every time that there has been change, it's always been for the worse - For
The worse
I wander off
It never did me any good
There is no point to build a bridge that they will never
cross
Realise

You had your rules
You broke them all at once
Even on your knees
You always cared too much
Go the other way
