It's the feeling of being stripped to a bomb
One little breeze and I'm ready to blow
Falling down an endless hole
You took my eyes, you took my voice
You tried to make me lose my grip
But this edge that I've been pushed to has shown me your face
I never knew that I did have a choice
I could've just left. No guilt. No regrets.

Guilt. Never again
Run. It belongs to the past
I'd never been that stuck
It never mattered what I said
I only said what you wanted to hear
Thought it would never fucking end

I might be dead, might be alive

The place where I'm headed, it might make no sense
It really doesn't matter, I'm getting away
I've created something that no one can kill
You're trying and trying. That's a mistake
You know my face, you know my sins
But that's not enough to take what is mine
Out of reach, out of touch
It will always be there breathing down your neck

Guilt. Never again
Run. It belongs to the past
I'd never been that stuck
It never mattered what I said
I only said what you wanted to hear
Thought it would never fucking end

You know my name, you know my face
That's not enough to take away what is mine
