It didn't take you long to find someone new
And it didn't take me long to walk away
While I was standing in the wings I saw everything
That you did up on that stage

While you were telling me all these lies
You thought that I was blind
But baby I could see right through you
Coming home at all hours of the night
Trying to tell me that red was blue and you thought I'd believe you
That red was blue and that I'd believe you

When the curtain fell your beast came out
No one saw it all but me
And to this day you're still fooling everyone
Everyone but me

While you were telling me all these lies
You thought that I was blind
But baby I could see right through you
Coming home at all hours of the night
Trying to tell me that red was blue and you thought I'd
believe you
That red was blue and that I'd believe you

And don't wait for my hands
They're hands you will never touch again
And when darkness surrounds you
I won't be the light that sees you through

Cause while you were telling me all these lies
You thought that I was blind
But baby I could see right through you
Coming home at all hours of the night
Trying to tell me that red was blue and you thought I'd
believe you
That red was blue and that I'd believe you
That red was blue and I don't believe you
