Thank you for everything
Thank you for nothing
My brother, there is no in-between
Never one without the other
I may not know anything
But I think I'm onto something
For every door opening,
There's another one slowly closing

Thank you for loving me
Thank you for leaving
Thank you for promising
And then promptly forgetting

For the gifts that were given
Just to be taken for granted
Studied indifference
Care turned to careless,
Once disenchanted

For the glass that was filled
Then just as easily broken
Thank you for everything and thank you for nothing
Thank you for nothing

Thank you for trusting me
And then biting the bullet
Thank you for laughing out loud
Even when you don't mean it

They say hurting is growing
If you believe when you say it

So I'll just keep saying it
Thank you, thank you
I'll just keep saying it
Thank you, thank you
I'll just keep saying it
Thank you, thank you
I'll just keep saying it
Thank you, thank you

Thank you for everything and thank you for nothing at all
Thank you for nothing at all
Thank you for nothing at all
