Lyrics by Daniel Forsythe

Here, here, here we go again
For every three steps forward
There's two we are pulled back again
Sky, sky, the evening sky is clear
But I hear thunder and a strange sense of danger is near
Cry, cry, but don't you cry for me
Cry for all the misguided ones, whose hearts still don't see
There are reasons to live in everything we do
In the time that we are given, I will show them to you
Well it only takes a moment
For your world to explode
And it only takes a moment
To sanctify your soul
Fear, fear, all around us in their eyes
Lord, I've stood my ground for you Won't you open up these skies?
And save me, save me, save me from this mob
They want to take my life
They want to shake my faith in God
Pain, pain, they strike me with their stones
I feel the sting of their hatred
As their nails crush my bones
Afraid, afraid, afraid of the truth
They're blinded by fear and rage, with everything to lose
Well it only takes a moment
For your world to explode
And it only takes a moment
To sanctify your soul
Free, free, I'll be free when this is done
My time is almost over now, and yours has just begun
On we go, answering the call
Remember me and carry on the word to all
Home, home, take me home again
On a slide of light, to that promised land
Home, home, take me home again
On a slide of light, to that promised land

On we go, answering the call
Remember me and carry on the word to all
