Lyrics by Daniel Forsythe

I'm a fool , surrounded by a wall of illusion
Created by my desire to believe your lies
I'm a fool, drowning in a well of confusion
Feeling helpless as I gaze into your eyes Love is crazy, don't know what I'm thinking, what I'm doing
I never could resist the way you smiled
Love is crazy, know that you're not feeling what I'm feeling
Still, sometimes I feel as helpless as a child
Sometimes I feel as helpless as a child
A thousand miles she came to find me
How could I know? Why should I hide?
Like a dream she came to blind me
I went along just for the ride
How could I know?...Why should I hide?
I went along ... just for the ride
My head's spinning, fighting my emotions for control
I know that if I win I'll only lose
My head's spinning, what I feel is stronger than what I know I know I've no choice left and still I choose
I am lost now, caught up in a web of self -destruction
Wondering if you always knew I'd go this way I am lost now, suffering more each day from my inaction
While searching for the strength to walk away
While searching for the strength to walk away
A thousand miles she came to find me
How could I know? Why should I hide?
Like a dream she came to blind me
I went along just for the ride
How could I know?...Why should I hide?
I went along ... just for the ride
Looking into your eyes , somehow I'm hypnotized
I wanna' leave but you know I always stay
Sometimes I think I'll get away today
But then I look in your eyes, and again I'm paralyzed
I don't know if I'll ever get away
How could I know?...Why should I hide?

I went along ... just for the ride
I don't know if I'll ever get away
