Lyrics by Daniel Forsythe

"Nothing is what it appears to be"
The old woman feebly cried
When truth is chained for convenience
Innocent people die
Three doors tower in front of you
Which one will you choose?
Your own redemption's just out of reach
There's no time left to lose
There's no time left to lose
"Why do you stand there waiting ?"
Came the familiar voice
So many lives are on the line
And you must make a choice
As if your force could prove you right
You boldly cross the line
Is anything worth so many lives ?
Will this dust settle in our time ?
Will this dust settle in our time ?
Cold wind whistling through empty streets
No other sound for miles around
Dead city standing in a yellow haze
Ruins crumbling to the ground
As lightning flashes in the distance
Big birds sail across the sky
Evil destruction is raining down
And the sky begins to cry
And the sky begins to cry...
