A car moves slowly down the street of a residential neighborhood
The conversations at its peak but the static's getting round and round
You're fading out, can't hear what you say, you're fading out, out, out, out
The car pulls over to the curb, a curtain moves behind a window

You're now completely out of range, in the dark where all the voices go
You're fading out, can't hear what you say, you're
fading out, out, out, out

fading out, out, out, out

What did you say? What did you say?
What did you say? What did you say? What did you say?
On a highway outside town, another stranger keeps you company
You're fading out, you're fading out, what did you say?
The batteries are running down, I'm gonna lose you to the atmosphere

You're fading out, what did you say? You're fading out What did you say? What did you say? What did you say?
You're fading out, can't hear what you say, you're
fading out, out, out, out
