

The Dead Milkmen

"Last Train"

Visit "Last Train" on MotoLyrics.com

The last train is leaving, can't you read the signals in my eyes?
I'm standing on the platform waiting for the one they left behind
If I'd foreseen the future, could I or would I have changed a thing?
Down a million miles of empty track just trying to get beyond what people think
And I don't know where I'm at

I'm heading down the hallway trying to find that doorway lost in time I'd been here once before but through the years it slowly left my mind I know your out there somewhere , waiting for me just beyond the rise
And if I ever find my way back to you- this time I'll realize I don't know where I'm at Imprisoned in a window, passengers looking down the line

I wonder what they're thinking, I wonder what they'll find
As I lit another cigarette watching for the wind across your hair
And for that fleeting moment, I swear, I saw you standing there
And I don't know where I'm at

Visit The Dead Milkmen page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.