Would you say that you've done things right
That there's nothing that you would do different
That you've kept what is dear inside
That your conscience is clear
That you're good
That you've always understood
What's needed of the people around you
They'll always find you
No need to look far, that's who you are

You didn't hear him scream
No one to open the door
No one to let him inside
Don't say that you tried
You know that's a lie
You didn't hear her call
No one to answer the phone
No one to make her come home
She's out there alone, and you know why
It's about time that you try

What's the reasons for absence
Did you go to the moon, are you superman
Can you explain the intolerance
Is there something you know that we never can
I don't think you understand
What's needed of the people around you
They'll never find you
No need to look far, that's who you are

You didn't hear him scream
No one to open the door
No one to let him inside
Don't say that you tried
You know that's a lie
You didn't hear her call
No one to answer the phone
No one to make her come home
She's out there alone, and you know why
It's about time that you try

You didn't hear him scream
No one to open the door
No one to let him inside
Don't say that you tried
You know that's a lie
You didn't hear her call
No one to answer the phone
No one to make her come home
She's out there alone, and you know why
It's about time that you try
It's about time that you try
