Beware ...
Beware ... go to find a safer place to rest
When you hear the willow's hiss beware if you dare dream neath its leaves beware, go to find a safer place

It mourns the forest that it once dwelt It mourns the birds that had left their nests and flew away ...

When the willow sings half alive
it releases all the pain it hides inside if you hear its song alone
You fall sleep and your soul is gone

This willow has bitter heart
This willow has bitter soul so...
Beware...
