As if this happens every day.
You keep your cool then look away.
But in the darkness you can see.
I know you want to come with me...

As if the sky were always grey,
And will I ever breathe again?
And as the tears roll down your face,
And as our bodies fly through space.

But something tells you it's not right.
A shadow flickers in the light.
A spirit guides you from the sky.
And clouds obscure what passes by...

As if the sky were always grey,
And will I ever breathe again?
And as the tears roll down your face,
And as our bodies fly through space.

And as I drift off into sleep,
I dream reality the key.
Because now I know you from the past.
Just how long can this feeling last?

As if the sky were always grey,
You look like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And will I ever breathe again?
You look like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And as the tears roll down your face,
You look like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And as our bodies fly through space,
You feel like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And as our bodies fly through space.

As if the sky were always grey,
You look like someone I know,

Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And will I ever breathe again?
You look like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And as the tears roll down your face,
You look like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go?
And as our bodies fly through space,
You feel like someone I know,
Where did I meet you and where do we go? And as our bodies fly through space.
