Being silent before we learn to speak,
Now the wolf roams free amoungth the sheep.
Unbroken and unbounded, raise the banner of nobility.

Hearts pound as the drums of war, Our future, is yet unborn,
Unchain and untamed, Our life is ours alone.
Let your voice make mountains shake, Fight till you have nothing left,
We stand as the damned, who long for something greater.
With dignity and pride, we lay down our lives,
They brought the sword, lets teach them how to use it.

Rip the noose from our neck, defiance that will never
break,
Our fight will never fade, As long as one still stands
here.
In the footsteps of our falling kin, we will not know
submission,
Our fight will never fade, As long as one still stands
here.

We are the ones, with the world at our feet,
Survival of the fiercest, and fierce are we.
With heaven coursing through our veins, inside we hold the key.
And not pass on our struggle so our children can be free.

We chose to hold our ground and we won't back down,
Come face us, we're Irish, now hear us, roar!

Rip the noose from our neck, defiance that will never
break,
Our fight will never fade, As long as one still stands
here.
In the footsteps of our falling kin, we will not know
submission,
Our fight will never fade, As long as one still stands
here.
