We have just heard somebody's voice, and hid us from the world Over the fence in the park of the night, there's a breeze we felt together

You have tried to say something to me, holding my hands so tight That feeling and your touch still fill up my heart, a part deep into my soul

Over the time, ever since then, is there anything we could have trusted each other I open the window just a little, there coming a cold, cold winter on wind

I feel sad and being alone Will this feeling of sorrow ever go away?
The mist from my sign of grief lingers for a time and disappeared
