falling apart at the seams but rolling as fast as we can we're searching for some in between and answers from only a man who promised to help us to live and begged us to borrow our trust

I gave it with not much to give a lie to my face was unjust so stand in line and wait your turn that wasn't how it was suppose to be cause there's injustice for all to see fan the flames and watch it burn recklessly crushing your dreams they leave us forever in debt well nothin's as good as it seems if this is as good as it gets desperately clinging to hope they raised us to merely exist we pick up the pieces to cope cause we are the last on their list

dry my eyes, and all fall from grace hear my call, and take your stand tell no lies, to my face reject all, rise and fall
