Is it really over
Anna-Lisa
Seems that we've grown older and time has beat us seems I've forgotten who to be you took the better part of me my heart, my soul, my sweetest memories you're my identity

Boxes line our hallway where laughter used to be empty house surrounds me and echos our history I wrack my brain
to find a way to bring us back to yesterday my love, my life, my childhood fantasy still everything to me

my Anna-Lisa

Looking out this window almost seeing you pull in the driveway and kiss me so casually if I knew then what I know now I would have changed your mind somehow my hopes, my dreams, my future family that's what you took from me
