For the dream of the future they hold in their hand

To live To love

In a heartbeat, on a clear day, in the land we call home
Where the earth seems to move with a presence unknown

As each man hears a sound that is felt through the air

For the dream of the future they rise and they dare

To live To love

As the night falls, the moon dreams, the city unwinds
It's each man for himself, and he grabs what he finds
But he's caught by the noise, from the blackness it sounds
So he turns from the street and he crawls underground

To live To love
