Jack is waiting tonight
He tries to relax but inside he's wound up tight

Tonight she's coming, he can feel it in his bones
Never again will Jackie have to be alone
He wants to prove, you can get blood out of a stone

But his hair's turning white
Waiting for Miss Right

And she is waiting as well
Her smile is bright but inside she's feeling like Hell

Only this morning has she started to suspect
Mr Right, don't come into this discotheque
He's got an image, she's still trying to perfect

She knows she is quite Right for Mr. Right

So who's Miss Right
And where is she tonight
And does she have a right
To play so hard to get
Well, I bet she's someone you never met

Meanwhile, Jackie still waits
Too much disappointment is turning his love into hate

In this world, he doesn't seem to realize
He's looking for someone he wouldn't recognize Someone ought to say, it's time to open up your eyes

You might see a light
Shine for you tonight

So who's Miss Right
She isn't here tonight
She maybe out of sight
But she's so hard to forget

So who's Miss Right

And where is she tonight
She doesn't have a right
To play so hard to get
I regret, she's someone I never met

I don't know, oh, why she is this way?
Can it be true what people say?
Never been loved, never been kissed
But only because she don't exist

But only because she don't exist
But only because she don't exist
But only because she don't exist

Who is Miss Right?
Who is Miss Right?
Who is Miss Right?
Who is Miss Right?
Who?
