Row of mirrors and I can't see my reflection, my reflection
My life is so far, far from my expectations, my expectations

It's getting lonely in this parking lot of life
I guess my punishment is my salvation

I wish I could find a way to roam, driving home
Always gives me the blues, gives me the blues
I wish I could find a way to roam, driving home
Always gives me the blues, gives me the blues

Singing songs about what I feel like inside
Keeps me coming back for more It's getting lonely, getting lonely in this parking lot of life
I guess my punishment is my salvation

I tread the thin line, I tread the thin line, I tread the thin
line

I tread the thin line
You don't know who to follow, who to follow home
Your life is so far, far from your expectations

Singing songs about what I feel like inside
Keeps me coming back for more
It's getting lonely with this parking lot of life
I guess my punishment is my salvation

I tread the thin line, I tread the thin line, I tread the thin
line
I tread the thin line, I tread the thin line
