Eleanor's castle boy what a hassle
Why did you have to build your walls so high I'd put my arms around you but a moat surrounds you
The only way's to let your drawbridge down

Nights without number I'm without slumber thinking of ways to breach your turrets tall You're an iron lady and someday maybe you'll forget bar the iron door

Man was made to conquer so the story goes I wish I knew who said it he could help me 'cause he knows This situation getting way out of line I can't win if you won't let me in Ain't it a sin (It's a sin she won't let him in)

Shielded from my advances there's very few chances I'm a one-man crusade fighting in vain

Rack my brain for ideas but it appears compared to you dragons are easily slain
