Until you dare to go where no man has ever been before
To leave behind the safety that you struggled for
And to get a taste of madness
Until you dare
To open up your heart and get it spat upon Drink the wine and smell that sadness
Take the goodness with the badness
Until you dare
How will I know how far you might have gone How high you might have climbed, how hard you might have fallen
How will I learn how good it feels to be alive
How you gonna learn how to fly when you're so busy crawling God knows where Until you dare to go where your mind has never been
To know who you are and what you're living for
And break the ties that bind you
Until you dare

To open up your eyes and see what's going on See the light you left behind you Go ahead and let it blind you
Until you dare
How will I know how far you might have gone
How high you might have climbed, how hard you might have fallen
How will I learn how good it feels to be alive
How you gonna learn how to fly when you're so busy
crawling
Until you dare
How will I know how far you might have gone
How high you might have climbed, how hard you might have fallen
How will I learn how good it feels to be alive
How you gonna learn how to fly when you're so busy
crawling
How much more will you take before you make your move

How you gonna learn how to live
Instead of just simply dying
Until you dare
