Take a little bit of everything, baby, I'll be all right
And don't just settle for living the lie that I thought you might Put on your disguise, let me see that you're bigger than me
Tell me that tomorrow I'll wake and year for you And when I call you name out, you leave and take a bow
And say, "What do you want from me?"
Call off the service now, baby, no one really knew
That I would have to leave, but now I'm a better man
I thought you realized I wanted you, but you left so suddenly
I know I promised, but now I lied
And when I kiss you someday, if you feel that you're allowed,
You say, "What do you want from me now?"
Burn all your candles, turn out the light
What do you want from me now?
Forget the feeling that you've been feeling
Deep inside of me, we'll be alright
Now it's the morning after and I'm doing what you said
Oh, but no one answer and I cope 'cause you are gone
Oh, I just wanted you, baby, oh but I have to deal 'cause
My heart isn't big enough to love you even if I please And when I call you someday, you will not make a sound
You'll say, "What do you want from me now?"
Burn all your candles, turn out the light
What do you want from me now?
Deep inside of me, we'll be alright
